YOU who have been bald for years, perhaps even your Fathers have been bald, and you think it is a family affair, and that it is hereditary, and you have tried every thing you could hear of without effect, and you have given up your case as hopeless, and have ceased to think about it, and have ceased to care for it, and have ceased to be ashamed of it, and have ceased to be bald, and have become reconciled to your lot, and have ceased to hope, and have ceased to fear, and have ceased to care, and have ceased to be ashamed

☞ A Correspondent wishes to know what we would substitute in place of public examination of Schools. We think if he will read carefully our article, to which he alludes, he will find it there stated, that, in place of occasional public examinations, it would be better to have frequent private examinations, by committees, and by parents and other friends of education. One great objection to public examination, is, that the number of private visits is thereby greatly lessened, both on the part of the school committee and parents. Frequent private visits are easily more towards awakening and keeping up the attention of pupils, and promoting the progress of the schools in their intellectual and moral studies, than do public examinations.—Now we wish that kind of examination to be resorted to which shall produce the happiest effect upon the pupils. This is of vastly more importance than the entertainment of a large number of visitors. The intellectual and moral training of the rising generation, is a matter of too much seriousness not to receive the highest attention. And, in our view, the highest good to the pupils is to be found in frequent visits of parents and others to the school room—not for display, nor for entertainment merely, but for the sober and solid purpose of giving encouragement to teacher and pupils, and of showing that the importance and magnitude of their work is understood and felt.

Not a parent who has a child attending one of our public schools, should ever suffer a term to pass without spending at least two hours in the school. They would thereby become acquainted with the merits of the teacher, the condition of the school houses, the general attendance of children, and other matters of interest, and of importance for them to know. They would also awaken a new interest in teachers and pupils.—These visits need not interrupt the proceedings of the school, but everything could go on in order, while they remained silent observers.

This is what we call something better than the present system of public examinations.

To our correspondent answered?

☞ Reformers should be the last men in the world to become impatient. Several reasons might be given for this, but one or two must now suffice.

First, because they are necessarily in advance of the community, and require patience in waiting for the preparation of the community to come up to their standard—ere it is fitting to be accomplished on account of reformers moving quite as fast from their point as the community from its point.

Second, because of all disagreeable, uncomfortable and dangerous things in the world, is an ardent reformer whose patience has become exhausted.

We have been reminded of these truths, in noticing that the editors of the Bi-Metal papers, and Rev. Mr. Atwell have all felt it a duty to defend the citizens of Bluehill against the assaults of a correspondence of the Cold Water Fountain, a professed temperance paper published at Gardiner. Now, this writer, although he supposes himself governed by high motives in a regard for temperance, yet he is either a reformer without patience, or has mistaken energy the true principles upon which the virtue of temperance should be advocated. False hood, and slander and vituperation may be resorted to to arouse people to the noble virtue of temperance, but the end cannot justify the means. What all should seek to develope in themselves and others is an orderly state of virtue and goodness a symetry of character, where early virtue shall occupy its proper place. One virtue however highly cultivated cannot supply the place of another, much less can it justify the neglecting of all evil. If a man is willing to be a devil he had better be a whole one—a first rate devil, but if he would be a man he should strive to be a whole man in a calm, earnest, orderly moral state.

☞ A new Temperance society has been formed in Portland of those who know the whole internal economy of Rum selling. The avowed object of this society is to put a stop to the selling of intoxicating drinks as a beverage. Alarming ships will be incurred—by persons who, at that will answer, of not—by the law.—When they commence on an establishment they do not intend to stop their progress short of a final victory.

☞ William L. Hodge, William Christy, and Randall Hunt, Esquires, have been appointed by the Senate of the United States, to take testimony in New Orleans, relative to the general boundary and operation of the Nacogdoches Laws and the Goods that may have been committed under them.

☞ The New Orleans Tribune says a great change is taking place in public opinion the right of the whole Southern country, in respect to emancipation and manufacturing establishments and the change cannot be otherwise than beneficial.

☞ Gov. Thomas B. Fox, of Newburyport, is about to resume his position and take charge of a Society there in connection with the Rev. Mr. Barnard, in the Warren street Chapel.

☞ Hon. John M. Clark has been unanimously nominated as the Whig candidate for Congress in the Fifth District, in Va.

District Court.

Among the acts which are now having a quiet course through the Legislature of our State is one abolishing the present District Court system. The bill has been passed and we have received a copy of it. It reflects an entire repeal of the law establishing that court, and transfers the whole business now pending in it to the Supreme Court which is authorized to proceed with it. The number of judges of the Supreme Court is increased to six with salaries of $1000 each. Any three of them are to constitute a quorum for the hearing and deciding of law questions, and cases in equity, and for this purpose they are to hold their sessions in the same manner and at the same times as now holden.—In addition to the law terms, nisi prius terms are to be holden in the several Counties of the State as heretofore held by the District Court. The Supreme Court to have jurisdiction of all cases now cognizable by that court or the District court.

This bill has already been passed to be engrossed in the House and from present appearances, seems likely to become the law. It has thus far, we believe, elicited no debate, and seems rather strange seeing it effects so very important a change in our judicial system.

☞ We learn from the Augusta Age that on Tuesday night Mr. I. E. Addams a member of a theatrical company now in that town was assaulted on the stage by two ruffians who with clubs rolled him to the earth—jumped upon him, stabbed him repeatedly in his left side, in the vicinity of the heart, and left him insensible. He was subsequently found in this condition, and taken to his lodgings. His clothes covering the heart were cut in several places, and the flesh penetrated to the skin, but fortunately the ruffians failed of their purpose, and he is expected to recover, none of his wounds being dangerous. No definite clue to the perpetrators of the assault exists although suspicion attaches to certain persons.

☞ The Texas ideas at Augusta have held a public meeting at which resolves were passed complimentary to Stephen Carey for his true vote and acknowledging him as the true exponent of Maine Democracy and inviting him to meet the Democracy of Augusta on his return home in such manner as the Committee of reception may determine.

☞ The Hon Asher Robbins, who for 14 years represented the State of Rhode Island in the U. S. Senate, died at Newport on Sunday evening.

☞ Mr. Samuel Morse of Brunswick, was seriously injured in a ship yard a few days since, by an axe falling upon him from the hand of another person.

☞ A call has been issued by about three hundred Democrats of Exeter and the towns in its vicinity for a public meeting to promote the election of John P. Hale to Congress. This looks encouraging.

☞ A London economist states, that two sheets of double imperial brown paper, pasted at the edge to form one, of laid over a bed with one blanket under, will produce more warmth than three ordinary blankets, or over a single coverlid, will be warmer than one blanket only, and will last with a little care, a whole winter.

☞ The case of books sold awhile since in New York by the Collector, although presented to the Government, has been published for the Government and sent to Washington.

☞ The ladies of Nashville are about to present Mr Clay with a vase like the one presented to Mr. Webster by the Bostonians.

☞ The Liberty party in Kennebec County are called upon, by a committee, to attend a Convention party for the benefit of the edition of the Standard!

☞ Gen Metcalf of Kentucky has recently published a letter in which he takes a ground against the emancipation of slaves in Kentucky.

☞ St. John, N. B., is to be lighted with gas by an American Company.

☞ John Tyler will probably make his last nominations to public office on Monday evening next. It is a real comfort to think he term of office will so soon expire.

CONGRESS.

Washington, Feb 24

In the Senate, the Oregon bill was taken up for the day. Mr Lewis made a powerful speech against the reception of Revenue Cutters, and Mr Allen succeeded in getting the Whole proposition to pass Commissioners of Pensions and Postage rejected. Mr Hardin moved to lay the Oregon bill on the table, and after a while the motion was carried by the Senate. Several efforts were made to raise a quorum. Sheppard Carey went to a tumultuous meeting in Philadelphia last night. Mr Hardin in his called him to order and he was informed him to go on still farther, in some intermediate quarters of an room.

Mr Hamlin of Me. made a pointed speech in reply to some of Carey's remarks, and in favor of the bill.

Several others took part in the debate, and the question was laid over.
